The horse was not hurt and the wagon only slightly damaged. The affair created quite a little excitement.

TRAMP WILL NOT LEAVE THE TOWN

Chief Shealer Gives Hobo Several Terms in Local Lock-up but Undesirable will not Leave. Has Large Clothing Supply.

Chief Shealer arrested a knight of the road this morning who claims that he simply cannot leave Gettysburg's borough limits. He has become so attached to the town that, notwithstanding several seasons in the lock-up he refuses to leave and apparently Chief Shealer must give him several more doses of bread and water treatment.

The fellow gives his home as anywhere he hangs his hat. He claims several different names, using which ever one suits him best at the time inquiry as to his identity is made. As for occupation he has been a farmer, he claims together with plying numerous other trades. One of the places at which he enjoyed the pursuit of agriculture for a day or two was the Samuel Allison farm near Bonneauville.

Just now umbrella mending is his alleged vocation but that fails to go with Chief Shealer and on Thursday night he was given his first experience as to accommodations in the lock-up. That place of abode is not particularly conducive to shivers this kind of weather and when the chief called around Friday afternoon to release the man found him looking like a victim of a Turkish bath. Inquiry revealed the fact that he was wearing among other things four shirts and three pairs of trousers. "All I've got," he said "except an overcoat, I left that in York."

The chief gave him his freedom with instructions to get out as fast as possible. This morning he tried for half an hour to persuade a Hanover street woman to give him several umbrellas. Chief Shealer had him soon afterward and imposed a thirty-six hour sentence in a warm cell on bread and water.

FUNERAL OF MURDERED WOMAN

Half a dozen persons followed the casket containing the body of Mrs. Sarah Matthey out of the little home her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hurley, Gas Alley, Chambersburg, Friday morning, got into two carriages in waiting and the funeral cortege of the murdered woman started for Roxbury, some fifteen miles away.

They were the Rev. B. G. Huber, the mother and four other relatives, who had been the only persons present at the service.

There was none of those gaping crowds on the sidewalks and in the streets, usually in evidence upon such occasions. There are no sidewalks in Gas Alley. But Mrs. Hurley's neighbors, all humble folk, like herself, proved their sympathy for the heart-broken mother by exhibiting the utmost respect for her sorrow.

Further services in the Methodist Protestant church at Roxbury.

Need is not allowed to read the newspapers and following a visit from counsel appointed by the court refuses to discuss the murder.

A large campus surrounds the buildings, which has been leveled and planted with trees and shrubbery. Walks and driveways, together with numerous flower beds have been laid out, which add to the beauty of the surroundings.

In addition to the main building, is a brick laundry building 25 by 35 feet in size, with basement, in which is installed the necessary equipment for a first class laundry.

The water plant, which is in the basement of the laundry building, comprises an artesian well 150 feet in depth, a large steam engine and pump, with two storage tanks 35 by 5 feet in size, from which water is forced through the buildings by hydraulic pressure.

FOUGHT FIRE WELL

The most skillful piece of fire fighting seen in the South Mountains for years was shown Thursday afternoon by the State Forestry fighters under the direction of Forester Robert S. Conklin.

The state timber land back of Brownsville, toward the sand bank, caught fire. The forestry men were at the Birch Run saw mill. Seeing the smoke they hurried to the fire and began work. It was a tough job and several times some of the workers had to withdraw for a time, being nearly suffocated.

The fire three times caught the house of Mrs. George Black, a widow who lives alone. Each time it was extinguished and finally the whole fire was put out.

Do Your Cooking in the Cool

A hot kitchen is little better than a prison in summer. But the range is there, so all the cooking and the washing must be done there, too.

What a relief it would be to move the range where you pleased. You can do this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove—cook your dinner out on the porch, if you like. It is the only range that is really portable—that works equally well in any place. There are no connections to be made, as in a gas range; no wiring, as with an electric stove; no sooty flues and ash-filled grates, as with coal or wood.

The long, enameled chimneys carry the heat directly up to saucers, oven or boiler; you get full value from your fuel, without waste.

LINER FARRAGUT SINKS THE MERIDA

Steamships in Collision Off Cape Charles, Va.

PROMPT WORK SAVES ALL

Wireless Call Brings Warship and Other Craft to Aid Liner Just Before She Goes Down in Deep Water.

Philadelphia, May 13.—The United Fruit company's steamship Admiral Farragut, which left this port for Port Antonio, Jamaica, and the Ward line steamship Merida, from Havana for New York, collided off the Cape Charles lightship. The Merida was sunk and the Farragut badly damaged, but as far as known no loss of life occurred.

The Merida's passengers and crew were transferred to the Admiral Farragut.

Water poured through the gaping wound in the Merida's side, and five hours after the collision the steamship settled beneath the waves, sinking in thirty-four fathoms of water.

Some doubt exists as to how seriously the Admiral Farragut was damaged. Shortly after the Merida's passengers were transhipped the Old Dominion line steamship Hamilton came alongside of the Admiral Farragut, and the Merida's survivors were again transhipped, this time to the Hamilton, which then started for Norfolk to land them.

Farragut Making For Port.

"Am proceeding at five knots per hour for shallow water, conveyed by United States ship Iowa. I wind and sea keep from southwest, will proceed northward toward New York, keeping stern to the seas. Cannot use anchors. Too thick to attempt to get into Chesapeake. Ship perfectly tight. Reinforced collision bulkheads holding."

The shock of the collision brought the passengers of both steamships to the decks. The transfer of passengers to the Admiral Farragut was effected in lifeboats.

The Merida's passengers lost all of their baggage and many reached the Farragut only partially dressed.

Wireless distress signals were flashed in every direction and the United States battleship Iowa hurried to the Merida's assistance. Officers of the Merida went among the passengers and assured them that there was no danger.

Passengers Watch Her Sink.

As the night wore on it became apparent that the Merida was sinking. Dawn revealed her as settling rapidly, her decks awash and her hull well nigh submerged, her stern lifted far above the water, gaping holes torn in her bow, allowing the seas to rush into her waist.

Crowding the decks of the Admiral Farragut, the passengers of the ill-fated vessel watched the Merida sinking. Nearly all of them were but partly clothed, all of their effects being on the abandoned ship.

At daylight the Hamilton sank. By that time the Hamilton was in sight, rapidly bearing down on the Admiral Farragut. Her lines were made fast and the work of transshipping the wrecked passengers was again undertaken, this time with less danger of accident, since the boats were lying side by side.

The sea was calm. Long, rolling swells caused but slight uneasiness among the passengers, and the transfer was soon effected.

The Hamilton then cast off, proceeding on her way to Norfolk, the port for which she was bound, when her wireless caught the "S. O. S." calls from the Admiral Farragut during the early morning hours.

PACKERS MUST STAND TRIAL

Judge Carpenter Overrules Demurrers in Beef Case.

Chicago, May 13.—The demurrers of the Chicago packers in the "beef trust" case were overruled by Judge Carpenter, in the United States district court. This means that the trials must go on.

In his ruling Judge Carpenter declared that the Sherman anti-trust law, which had been attacked by the packers, was constitutional. He also held that the indictment charging J. Ogden Armour and other packers with violating its provisions was valid.

Judge Carpenter's decision may have an indirect bearing on all anti-trust litigation in the United States in upholding the completeness and stability of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The packers based their demurrers in part on assertion that the act did not define a crime or provide a legal and constitutional means of correcting the abuses it was designed to control. The decision directly denied this as assumption.

As to the stability of the indictment the court said:

"I do not see how the grand jury could have made the charge more definite, and believe it is sufficiently specific to satisfy the substantive law."

"The whole plan—that of the packers as alleged in the indictment—from its inception appears plainly to be one to eliminate competition as a factor in fixing prices among the three groups of defendants, beginning with the agreement not to bid against each other, and, in fact, to bid exactly the same amounts for like grades of live stock, fixing a uniform selling price and ending with fixing a uniform price of sale and an apportionment among themselves of the total business done."

"I am of the opinion that the facts stated in the indictment show clearly a plan or scheme organized and put in operation by the defendants, the ultimate purpose of which was to control the production, sale and distribution of fresh meat throughout a large section of this country; and, as incident to that control, to lower prices to the producer of the raw material and raise prices to the consumer and finished product."

Judge Carpenter, overruling the demurrers, said he did not think the trial could be held before fall. On May 17 the packers will appear and plead to the charges or file a petition for a bill of particulars.

DEATH IN RAGING FOREST FLAMES

Fire Fighters Are Missing and Doubtless Dead.

PART OF TOWN BURNS

Several School Houses and Scores of Farm Houses Have Been Destroyed. Thirty Miles Burned Over.

Williamsport, Pa., May 13.—Late reports from the Pine creek region say the forest fires are the worst in the history of the state.

The flames have burned over an area of thirty miles and all efforts to check them have so far counted for naught.

The rains of the past few days have not caused the fires to abate, and state fire wardens are now working on extensive plans of back-firing. Several fire fighters are reported to be missing and it is feared they have been burned to death and that their charred bodies will be found in the smoldering woods.

Frank Chandler, of Slate Run, is reported to have been caught between two sections of fire and no doubt has been burned to death.

Every able-bodied citizen of Waterville, Cammalt, Leontonia and Slate Run has joined the ranks of the fire fighters and even boys and women are aiding in the work.

Leontonia was visited by the fire fiend which laid the forests a waste nearby, and a large portion of the town was burned. Valiant work alone saved the big tannery, which is one of the largest in the state. The black forest, an immense tract of state land, is a mass of flames and forest rangers from all parts of the state have been summoned to the scene.

In Brown township and at Slate Run several school houses have been burned and scores of farm houses have been the prey of the flames. The home of J. W. Tomb, a wealthy farmer at Slate Run, was destroyed and a large number of cattle also perished.

Cattle in the woods have been burned by the hundreds and the loss is incalculable. Saw mills have been burned up and millions of feet of lumber have been destroyed.

The people in the Pine Creek district are in a condition akin to panic and their prayers are that the fires may be extinguished.

The entire region is under a dense pall of smoke and it is plainly noticeable in Williamsport. During the day the sun was hardly visible.

Fire fighters are being sent out from Williamsport and neighboring cities.

LADY DECIES UNDER KNIFE

Former Vivien Gould Operated on For Appendicitis.

London, May 13.—Lady Decies, who before her marriage to Lord Decies was Miss Helen Vivien Gould, of New York, underwent an operation for appendicitis.

The operation was performed at the residence of her mother-in-law, Dowager Lady Decies, and is announced to have been most satisfactory.

It was rumored last week that the American bride had experienced an attack of appendicitis that would necessitate an operation. At the same time it was said that the operation would be delayed so as not to interfere with the presentation of Lady Decies at the second court of King George on Wednesday night last.

Lady Decies was presented as had been planned and the medical treatment required has followed after an interval of one day.

ADVICE TO WOMEN

Doctor Attributes "Slab-Sidedness" to Back-Sleeping.

Cleveland, O., May 13.—Defense of comic artists who depict scolding wives and irascible mothers as thin and "slab-sided" was made before the Ohio Medical Convention by Dr. C. W. Moots, of Toledo.

The artists are telling the truth, according to Dr. Moots. He said:

"Every time I see one of these women coming into my office, with sharp face and flat chest and inelastic muscles, I am in doubt whether to feel sorry for the patient or for myself. There is something the matter inside of them. They ought to be operated upon."

"Women sleep too much upon their backs. Family physicians should advise them to lie upon their sides, or, better yet, upon their stomachs. This would prevent internal disorders and the consequent necessity of a surgeon."

Rejected Lover Kills Rival.

Brownsville, Pa., May 13.—Mosi Millangan, a rejected suitor for the hand of Miss Santi Petioni, is charged with firing a shot which killed John Bosso, a successful rival, and slightly wounded the girl, at Dearth. Millangan, it is alleged, fired at a silhouette of his victims in a fond embrace on a window blind.

JOHN WARD AWARDED $1000

Former Ball Player Wins Libel Suit Against Ban Johnson.

New York, May 13.—John M. Ward was awarded a verdict of $1000 damages in his suit of libel against Ban Johnson, president of the American league.

Mr. Johnson, it is alleged, called Mr. Ward a "trickster" in a newspaper article.

The article contains reference to the case of George Davis, a ball player, for whom Mr. Ward drew up a contract.

It was Mr. Ward's relations with Davis and his contracts that Mr. Johnson alleged to have referred to.

FIRE BUILDING TO PROVE IT FIREPROOF

Will Start Fires in Rooms and Close the Doors.

Wilmington, Del., May 13.—Arrangements are being made by John J. Raskob, assistant treasurer of the Dupont Powder company, to prove that their $3,000,000 office building at Tenth and Market streets is absolutely fireproof.

At a demonstration to which the fire chiefs of various cities, insurance underwriters and contractors and builders are to be invited, Mr. Raskob is to set the office afire. It is his intention to start fires in various rooms and then close the doors.

He contends that when these are opened it will be found that the fire will have burned itself out.

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made from Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs, which, unfortunately, are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hairs, however, are not always an indication of advancing age, for many people have gray hairs quite early in life. Of course, it is unnatural, and indicates that there is something wrong with the individual, and that Nature needs assistance in correcting the trouble. The same is true of hair that is constantly falling out and becoming thinner every day. If everything is right with Nature, the hair, even in comparatively elderly people, should be long, thick and glossy, without even a streak of gray.

The ideal assistant to Nature in restoring and preserving the hair is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a clean and wholesome dressing for daily use. It not only removes dandruff, but strengthens weak, thin and falling hair and promotes its growth. A few applications will restore faded or gray hair to its natural color.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Kansas legislators are to be commended for a piece of legislation lately passed, at once sensible and merciful, which makes it possible to use the idle convicts in the state penitentiaries in the building of a highway from Leavenworth to Kansas City, Kan. The taxpayers will get a return from the labor of the convicts, and the latter will be the better for the physical exercise and fresh air which they will get.

In contrast to the idea—all too prevalent—that one cannot make money raising stock on less than from 100 to 200 acres may be cited the experience of a Pennsylvania dominion who kept thirty head of stock on fifteen acres, growing all the roughage for them on this area, and who by prudent management was able to pay off a mortgage of $7,200 on the place in the course of seven years. To add to his troubles, the farm was badly run down at the time he bought it. While the account does not state, it is fair to assume that at least half of the stock kept consisted of dairy cows, by the keeping of which the building up of the fertility of the soil was an easy matter.

DICKINSON QUILTS

TAFT'S CABINET

President Accepts Resignation of War Secretary.

BUSINESS HIS REASON

Washington, May 13.—Jacob M. Dickinson, of Tennessee, will be succeeded as secretary of war in the Taft cabinet by Henry L. Stimson, of New York.
The new secretary of war is an intimate friend of ex-President Roosevelt and a progressive. He was defeated for governor of New York last fall.

The announcement of Mr. Dickinson's resignation and the selection of Mr. Stimson as his successor was made at the White House. Mr. Dickinson's resignation will become effective immediately upon the qualification of Mr. Stimson. The understanding is that Mr. Stimson will take the oath of office and enter upon his new duties the latter part of next week. The president will confer with Mr. Stimson in New York, when the exact date of the change at the head of the war department will be determined.

The resignation of Secretary Dickinson marks the second break in the Taft cabinet. Richard A. Ballinger handed in his resignation as secretary of the interior on April 7 and was succeeded a week later by Walter L. Fisher, of Illinois.
Secretary Dickinson gives business reasons as his motive for retiring from the cabinet. While there have been reports from time to time in the past year that Mr. Dickinson contemplated returning to private life, the official announcement of his resignation came as a surprise to official and political Washington.

Mr. Stimson's nomination will give New York two places in the cabinet, George W.ickersham, of that state, now holding the office of attorney general.
The official correspondence given out at the White House shows that Secretary Dickinson presented his letter of resignation to the president on April 28. The president accepted the resignation on May 8, Mr. Taft having arranged in the meantime for the appointment of Mr. Stimson.
It was explained in behalf of Mr. Dickinson that most of his private fortune is invested in a coal company in Tennessee. The company was recently placed in the hands of a receiver. In order to protect his interest Mr. Dickinson decided to resign. It is his purpose to return to his home in Tennessee.

BALFOUR MAKES FLIGHT

J. Armstrong Drexel Shaken When Aeroplane Falls Twenty Feet.
London, May 13.—Arthur J. Balfour achieved his ambition to make an aeroplane flight at the Hendon aerodrome, where he attended the aeroplane demonstration, together with War Minister Haldane, Premier Asquith, John Redmond and numerous other politicians and society people.
J. Armstrong Drexel was nearly killed on Grahame-White's Blériot through the carelessness of the mechanic, who crossed the wires of his elevator, so that when the machine left the ground and Drexel pulled the lever back to ascend the control operated the wrong way and the machine dived onto its nose from a height of twenty feet. It was smashed up. Drexel fortunately escaped with a shaking and torn trousers, but was pretty mad at being made to risk his life on an untested machine.

QUEEN MOURNS EDWARD VII.

Alexandra Deeply Affected at Service on Anniversary of King's Death.
London, May 13.—Queen Mother Alexandra, who returned a week ago from a cruise in the Mediterranean, is in residence at Sandringham Palace, where she will remain until after the coronation.
During the cruise and since her return the queen mother has enjoyed good general health. She reached London just in time to be present at the memorial service on the anniversary of the death and King Edward, and her distress during the service was marked.

400 Girls Escape Fire.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 13.—Galland Brothers' underwear factory, a large three-story brick building in the heart of the city, was gutted by fire. The 400 girls employed in the place had just returned from luncheon, but all got out in safety. It is said the fire started in the boiler room. The loss will be $25,000.

SENATE VOTE FOR RECIPROCITY, 47

Canvass Shows Majority of Five For Pact.

Washington, May 13.—Almost no doubt is now felt here that the Canadian reciprocity agreement will be adopted. For the bill, in the senate, there are now counted forty-seven votes; against it, forty-two.
That there may be some changes between now and the date for the vote is conceded. There has recently been strong intimation that the insurgent Republicans, instead of dividing, may get together almost solidly on a program of presenting and pressing vigorously the Cummins amendments, denouncing the measure, and then finally voting for it under protest. But the success of such a get-together campaign does not seem likely at this time. A strong majority of insurgents are likely to vote against the pact.
Hearings on reciprocity were continued before the senate finance committee.

R. A. Wilkinson, of Minnesota, was heard for more than an hour in the early part of the session. He insisted that the Canadian agreement would greatly injure the grain business—contending that it was discriminatory against the farmers, and that they, as well as other interests, were entitled to protection.
"Do you believe a trade agreement would have been entered into that would have injured the steel trust or the shoe industry $40,000,000 a year without consulting them?" inquired Mr. Wilkinson.

DRUGGIST KILLS WOMAN

Blames Preacher For Error That Resulted In Death.
Chicago, May 13.—Emil Hecht, a clerk in the drug store at 1681 West Sixty-third street, admits he was responsible for the death of Mrs. Belle Duncan, 7121 South Paulina street.
Hecht said he had filled a prescription for the woman and had given her strychnine instead of morphine by mistake.
He blamed Rev. J. F. Fitcher for his error. He said the clergyman came into the store while he was filling the prescription and upbraided him because his daughter had failed to get a bottle of grape juice for communion service when she called for it. The preacher's lecture, he said, confused him, and he got the bottles of drugs mixed.

DISAPPOINTED IN EGYPT

British Agent Acknowledges Self Government Is Failure.
London, May 13.—Sir Eldon Gorst, the British agent and consul general in Egypt, frankly acknowledges that the efforts made to develop self government in Egypt have been disappointing.
The legislative council and the general assembly, he says, have become "mere instruments of nationalist agitation against the occupation." They seek to render the business of the government impossible.
"The conclusion to be drawn," says Sir Eldon, "is that the policy of ruling this country in co-operation with native ministers at the present time is incompatible with that of encouraging so called representative institutions."

Tangier, May 13.—In skirmishing between the sultan's troops and the rebels of Fez three of the sultan's soldiers were killed. The news reaches headquarters from the sultan's spies that the tribesmen who are besieging Fez have prepared for a general attack today. The sultan's troops are taking up positions to repel the assault.

CARBON DIOXIDE LAMP FUMES.

You never smelled carbon dioxide? That's just those old lamp fumes that kill germs in incubator eggs or make eggs hatch anaemic chicks that quick turn up their toes. Incubators run by electricity, of course, are free from this deadly element, but where kerosene lamps are used, unless precautions are taken, this gas gets in its work. One lamp makes enough, but think how the air may be contaminated where twenty to sixty are burning. There are two ways by which this destructive gets to the eggs. Some incubator heaters leak lamp fumes right into the egg chamber, and when their lamps smoke soot pours in on the eggs and even blackens them and clogs the air passages. These are mostly the cheap, clutrap machines, whose heaters are not lapped, sealed, riveted or soldered properly. They are fire traps, and their successive failures often discourage the amateur and rudely wreck his beautiful hot air castles.
A good heater throws all fumes into the room, or these fumes are piped from the heater to the outer air.
Many neglect to ventilate the incubator room where the lamp throws off this gas, and it is carried into the egg chamber, and the embryo has no chance for normal and successful development. Thus the germ dies early and rots, the chick sticks in the shell, or the chick that hatches is worthless.

Knew His Own Weakness.

With much trouble the burglar had effected an entrance into the big trust company's office. As he approached the big steel safe he was confronted by this sign:
Save Your Dynamite.
This Safe Is Not Locked.
Turn Knob and Open.
"I don't know what their little game is," he said, "but I'll just see if it really is unlocked."
He grasped the knob and gave it a turn.
Whereupon he received an electric shock that nearly felled him, an alarm bell rang loudly, the office became flooded with light, a door in the wall flew open and a big dog sprang at him.
"Darn my fool hide!" he exclaimed an hour later as the door of a cell in the police station closed on him. "I know what's the matter with me! I'm too trusting!"—Chicago Tribune.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

"From nothing, nothing comes," should be written on the henhouse where poor birds are mated for breeders. Let some other fellow try it and be convinced.
A "rot and spot" was thrown through a Carbondale (Pa.) school window and smashed on the blackboard. School was at once dismissed and the windows left open Saturday and Sunday to air the place. This is no eggs-aggeration.
Oats is one of the best summer feeds. It is a cool ration. It is a bone and muscle builder for young stock and A1 for hens. The wise feeder always lays in a good stock of oats for spring and the heated period.
Stunted and smothered chicks result from crowding. To keep them from piling up in the corner of that brooder turn on more heat and they'll soon scatter.
A four-year-old boy entered his father's chicken coop and after a fight succeeded in wringing the necks of nine prize winning White Wyandotte roosters. His father, a Hollidaysburg (Pa.) cop, is studying whether the boy will be a pugilist or a preacher.
In feeding raw cut bone to chicks pass it through the fingers so they get no silvers, and in deciding the quantity remember it is a substitute for bugs and worms. Chicks get few of these at a time, so feed sparingly.
It is always wise to look around home for stock before sending elsewhere. You see what you are getting, save freight and often pay less. Yes, "there is no place like home." Put that down.
It is the best plan to move your chicks often and as they grow larger to increase the size of their pens. Fresh ground and roomy, clean, well aired quarters are great factors to success.
Open water vessels are seldom seen now. They are microbe breeders. Many stores carry a stock of nice chick servers at a low price. In these the water keeps clean and sweet.
Examine your male breeders before the season is in full swing. They are such gallant fellows and often so deny themselves feed for the hens as to be thin and unfit to fertilize eggs. Feed them alone once a day to make sure.
When the cheap egg season is on buy fresh eggs from a responsible egg farmer and put them down in water glass. One part glass to fifteen parts water is a proper solution. You can thus laugh at the trust and say "I told you so" to the fellow who complains about the awful price of eggs.
A variety of food is the spice of life for quacks, humans included.
Nine tons of liquid eggs were found in the possession of a Jersey refrigerator company and were dumped into the Atlantic. They were filthy and decomposed. What a tribute to Neptune!

PREVENT TROUBLE AT CALVING TIME.

There is no period in the life of a cow when she requires and should receive more attention than at the time of freshening, owing to the fact that she is so susceptible to complication of diseases such as milk fever, retention of the afterbirth, stoppage or paralysis of the bowels, mastitis or inflammation of the udder and many other diseases.

Among these mentioned perhaps the retention of the afterbirth is the most common, and while it does not necessarily terminate fatally it is exceedingly successful in ruining a cow as a profit producer, writes Dr. David Roberts in National Stockman. The afterbirth is sometimes retained owing to the fact that a cow has been given cold water at the time of freshening, or permitted to freshen in a cold, damp stable, or out in the rain when the weather is unfavorable.

When the afterbirth is retained it should not be removed by manual force

The handsome Jersey cow Sophie XIX., of Hood farm, whose portrait appears above, property of C. L. Hood, Lowell, Mass., has joined the three Jersey pacemakers—Jacoba Irene, Olga IV.'s Pride and Adelaide of Beechlands, all having authenticated records of over 1,000 pounds of butter in a year. Sophie calved on Christmas, 1909, and during the calendar year 1910 produced 14,323 pounds and 3 ounces of milk, testing on average 5.98 per cent fat, showing her fat yield to be 84 pounds 12.5 ounces, equivalent to 1,691 pounds 5 ounces 83 per cent butter, allowing for all probable losses in creaming and churning, a record only eclipsed so far by Jacoba Irene's 1,126 pounds. The milk was sold at 10 cents a quart, bringing $718, and her food (bran, cornmeal, gluten, cotton seed, hay, ensilage, alfalfa, beets and pasture) is valued at $154, showing $564 earned.

owing to the fact that parts will remain. These parts are converted into matter which set up an intense inflammation, causing a catarrhal condition of the genital organs. The animal absorbs the pus which forms from the retained parts and the absorbing of such decomposed tissue upsets the entire system of the animal. This pus is excreted from the system to some extent from the kidneys, bowels and udder, thus rendering the milk from a cow that has retained her afterbirth unfit for human food.

Cows thus afflicted should be given a dry, clean, well ventilated box stall. A blanket should be placed upon them in cold weather. They should be given ground oats, bran, good clover or alfalfa hay, plenty of water with the chili taken from it and such medicine as will have a tendency to ripen and expel the afterbirth. The genital organs should be washed out with an antiseptic solution and in this way a cow which has retained her afterbirth will soon be put in a strong, healthy, profitable condition, whereas if she is neglected she will be ruined as a profitable producer.

Feeding the Brood Sow.

All sour swill must be kept away from the sows while they are nourishing young. Wheat middlings is an excellent grain food for brood sows and young pigs, although a little bran may be used to lighten up a little during the first few days and some digestor (tannage) to add to the nutritive value during the time the pigs are pulling down all the milk the sow is capable of giving. The feeder must use his own judgment as to the condition of the sow and her pigs and plan his methods of feeding accordingly. No man can tell just how much care and food a sow and her pigs will require. Constant attention alone will decide the question. The best of care and plenty of food during this critical period has an influence upon the development of the pigs that can be noticed until they are full grown.

Cause of Unsound Wool.

Manufacturers will not buy wool which is not wholly sound. Again and again have I seen buyers take a sample of the fleece from the bale and upon finding that the threads would uniformly tear at a certain place reject the entire supply or else take it only at a great reduction in price, writes W. A. Frechot in Farm and Fireside. There is one great cause for the production of weak wool fiber—that is, a change of food and treatment. A flock of sheep may be in the best of condition when sold, but if the new owner does not feed and shelter it properly the new wool that grows will be of inferior quality and at the dividing line between that and the old it may be easily torn.

The Profitable Dairy Cow.

Don't allow that old reprobate of a cow to fool you by giving a profuse flow of milk for five or six months, then going dry. It's the cow that gives a reasonable amount of milk from seven to nine months in the year that you may safely bank on as a profitable member of your dairy herd.

A Lion Tamed

By R. W. KENAN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

A good many years ago, when the Union Pacific railroad was being built, one going across the continent was obliged to travel by stage a good part of the way. One day a coach loaded with passengers was going up and down the uneven country formed by the Rocky mountains. The drivers of those coaches were usually excellent men and very expert in driving six horses over the zigzag roads. Indeed, they were like the engineer of a railway train who holds the lives of those behind him in his hand. But in this case if the driver was expert he was not careful of the lives of his passengers. Rather, he was just the reverse. In going down a grade he would go lickity-split, turning curves over precipices, slurring the coach to the very edge, to the horror of those for whom he was driving.

The women, at first, when passing through one of these dangers, would hold on to what was nearest to them for dear life, but would finally cry out with terror. Some of the men expostulated with the driver, but were told so fiercely to shut up that none of them dared to enter further protest. Besides, they saw that what they said only incited him to new violence.

Beside the driver sat a young man in a checkboard suit. He did not join the others in endeavoring to stop the man's recklessness, though he was nearest to him. He kept his arms folded, balancing himself as the stage careened like a ship, both sideways and fore and aft. He was not over five feet six inches high and not especially thick in proportion to his height. The driver being six feet tall and heavy in proportion, it was not to be wondered that the little man held his peace.

The coach had made one of its break-neck descents and had reached level travelling, with a gradual ascent ahead, when the man in a checkboard suit said to the driver in a low tone:

"Been drinking?"

"Naw. Haven't taken a drink in a year."

"Reckon you're right. I could smell it if you had. Well, seem' you're not drunk, what you tryin' to spill us for?"

The driver turned and looked down on the little man contemptuously.

"See here, young feller," he thundered, "do you know what passengers gits for interferin' with ribbon hold ers?"

"No. Do they get shot?"

"Git shot! Do you suppose I'd waste good lead on your little car cass?"

"Well, what would you do if I were to interfere with your drivin'?"

"I'll tell you what I'd do—I'd just bring my arm around and wipe you off into the road."

The outside passengers sitting behind the two were interested in their conversation. The little man asked the questions in a childlike fashion, as a small boy would ask them, the big man always responding with the growl of a lion. When the driver spoke the last words the horses had come to the beginning of the ascent and had dropped into a walk. Suddenly the man in the checkboard suit seemed to double up like a jackknife. Bracing his back against the top of the coach behind him, he put his feet against the driver, gave a shove, and the big man landed ten or twelve feet below in the road.

This was not all. The little man jumped after him and landed beside him. The big man got half way up on his foot when the little man planted a blow on his jaw and rolled him over again. The big man made another attempt to rise, and the little man hit him another crack, with the same result. Then, throwing off his check-board coat, the latter said:

"Git up!"

This time the driver was permitted to rise and rushed for his tormentor like a bull. The tormentor was not in the line of rush, but as the driver passed he received a blow under the chin that leveled him again with the road. He was allowed to rise after this when knocked down and every time he arose was sent back where he came from. He was a strong man, but his adversary played with him as a cat would play with a mouse. Finally the driver's strength was all spent, and he lay in the road like a log.

One of the outside passengers had caught the reins and brought the horses to a stand, and the passengers had witnessed the fray.

As soon as it was evident that the lion could neither bite nor roar any more every passenger jumped from the coach and surrounded the little man. Every man grasped his hand and every woman kissed him. He looked very much disconcerted, as though he were getting credit for whipping a rebellious terrier.

"You don't understand," he said. "Understand what?" some one asked. "Why, this is in the line of my business."

"You bet!" shouted one of the party. "You don't know who I am. I'm the champion featherweight of the world, and I'm going to Frisco to give Sandy Blake a chance to get it away from me."

Climbing to the driver's seat, he took the reins and, leaving the vanquished man lying in the road, drove on as if he had been as used to the ribbons as to the gloves. What became of the driver none of the passengers ever knew or cared.

Twenty-five years ago the seed product of southern cotton gins was one of the banes and chief wastes of the cotton growing industry, and thousands upon thousands of tons of the seed were burned or allowed to lie and rot. But soon there came a change. A method was devised for extracting the heavy oil content, and a little later the protein value of cottonseed meal was discovered. In 1910 the value of the oil and meal or cake manufactured from cottonseed was placed at $140,000,000, or about one-fourth of the total value of the cotton crop.

CHILD IN BARREL OF LIME

Mary, an eighteen months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Strausbaugh, of Menges Mills, fell head foremost into a barrel of slaking lime in the back yard of their residence on Friday almost perishing before help arrived. The mother's attention was attracted by the screaming of the other children and hastily going to the rescue she drew the child from the barrel. The child's mouth, nose and eyes were full of the liquid lime and it was nearly smothered, but by quick action its life was saved. The face was found burned and peeling off and the eyeballs scalded to blistering. Dr. L. A. Roth of Spring Grove, the family physician, arrived shortly after the accident and by prompt treatment saved the child from probable blindness.

Co-operation Needed In Road Work. There is no sort of public work in which folks are interested generally where the principle of co-operation could be followed to better advantage than in the care of the public highways. In some sections this fact seems to be recognized, in some others not.

Especially is there need of this co-operation in those sections where earth roads are the rule and where the character of the soil is such that there is need of working it at a critical time following heavy rains or wet seasons. Particularly is this true of stiff clay or adobe soils, which can be advantageously worked and leveled only when they possess the proper amount of moisture and the right consistency.

WHAT BAD ROADS COST.

Bad roads cost the people of America $1250 "a head" each year. That is the waste computed from government statistics. It represents the extra expense of hauling foodstuffs to market over bad roads contrasted with the expense of the same hauling over good roads. That loss is much more in amount than the total of all the revenues of the nation and forty-six states for the same period.—Kansas City Star.

Fair Exchange

A NEW BACK for an OLD ONE—HOW IT IS DONE IN GETTYSBURG

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Gettysburg Citizen.

Mrs. C. W. Culp, 423 S. Washington Street, Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I have greater faith in Doan's Kidney Pills today than when I publicly recommended them two years ago. A member of my family had kidney trouble, as the result of an attack of the measles. Back ache caused much suffering and there were pains in the side which made lifting an impossibility. Doan's Kidney Pills were also unobtainable. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally procured at the People's Drug Store and their use was followed by great relief. I advise anyone afflicted with kidney complaint to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
